Access to the print records and electronic formats in the Mark Twain Archive are subject to donor restrictions. Requests for publication require the submission of the permissions request form.

REQUESTS FOR PUBLICATION:

The Mark Twain Archive can grant permission to publish from the materials for which it holds copyright, including materials published by the Center for Mark Twain Studies and Elmira College, records created on behalf of the Center for Mark Twain Studies and Elmira College, and records for which the donor has given the Archive copyright. In all other instances, it is the responsibility of the researcher to obtain copyright permission.

The Mark Twain Archive has substantial collections of primary and secondary sources about Mark Twain’s legacy; a portion of these materials have been created and compiled by Twain scholars, and as the physical holder of these papers, the Archive does not assume copyright or grant permission to publish from them.

Authorization to publish from the Mark Twain Archive does not constitute as a copyright agreement. Applicants are responsible for determining the copyright status of materials. Applicants are legally obligated to comply with laws pertaining to copyright and intellectual property and assume all responsibility for securing permission from the copyright holder.

In granting permission to publish from items in the collection, the Mark Twain Archive does not forfeit its right to publish from the same materials or the right to grant others to publish from the material.

The Copyright law of the United States (U.S. Code, Title 17) governs the making of photocopies and reproductions of copyrighted material. Photocopies and reproductions are for the purposes of scholarship only; all other uses are subject to copyright law.

A photocopy does not constitute an authorization to publish. When publication is intended, an application for publication rights for any material quoted or reproduced from the Mark Twain Archive must be submitted in writing by completing the permissions request form.
